

QUAVER REPORT

Great Composers of the Classical Period

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart

HIS LIFE AND MUSIC

- Born January 27, 1756 in Salzburg, Austria and died on December 5, 1791 at the age of 35.
- One of Mozart's most famous pieces was called Eine Kleine Nacht Musik (A Little Night Music).
- His music is very pure and clean.
- Mozart composed 41 symphonies and composed his first opera at age 12!

FUN FACTS

- He had an amazing memory for music. He once heard a piece of music that had never been written down called Miserere by Allegri. Mozart was so captivated by it that he couldn't get it out of his head. He woke up in the night and wrote it down - and there were nine separate parts...GENIUS!
- With your parents approval, watch the movie Amadeus for a look into Mozart's world.

▶ Find out more on QuaverMusic.com

Joseph Haydn

HIS LIFE AND MUSIC

- Born March 31, 1732 and died May 31, 1809 in Austria.
- Haydn is often called the "Father of the Symphony" and the "Father of the String Quartet" because of his important contributions to these types of ensembles.
- A life-long resident of Austria, he spent much of his life as a court musician for a wealthy Hungarian family on their remote estate.
- Haydn was a close friend of Mozart and a teacher of Beethoven.
- He had two brothers, one a composer and the other a singer.

FUN FACTS

- Haydn had a robust sense of humor, evident in his love of practical jokes and often apparent in his music. He had many friends and was very respected as a composer.
- Perhaps more than any other composer, Haydn's music is known for its humor. The most famous example is the sudden loud chord in the slow movement of his Surprise symphony which was used to wake up the audience who had fallen asleep.
- Mozart so loved Haydn that he wrote a set of six quartets, known as the Haydn Quartets.

▶ Find out more on QuaverMusic.com

Ludwig van Beethoven

HIS LIFE AND MUSIC

- Born in Germany and baptized December 17, 1770 and died March 26, 1827.
- Beethoven's first music teacher was his father.
- Beethoven's first public performance was in March 1778 at the age of seven!
- One of Beethoven's most famous pieces is his Fifth Symphony. Listen to how the rhythm at the beginning repeats throughout the piece - over and over again.
- Beethoven led music into a new era as he started to put a lot of his own feelings into his music and made it more passionate.
- He increased the size of the orchestra as well. He even added a full choir and 4 solo singers in his Ninth Symphony.

FUN FACTS

- Beethoven was a musical genius who became deaf later in life and didn't hear many of his greatest works. He had to bite on a stick to feel the vibrations of his piano.
- Beethoven had lessons with Haydn, but Haydn didn't like his bad manners.

 Find out more on QuaverMusic.com

More about the Classical Period...

- Preceded by the Baroque period and followed by the Romantic period, the music of the Classical period was less fancy. It was simpler and cleaner.
- All the great Classical composers lived in Europe.
- Music was in predictable 4 and 8 bar measures called phrases. Everything was well-organized into pretty melodies.
- Though George Washington was born during the Baroque Period in 1732 his greatest period of influence (1775 - 1799) was during the Classical Period of music.
- The harpsichord was replaced by the piano (originally known as the pianoforte).
- In the Classical Period, Europeans loved to go to coffee houses at night to talk - much like today's Starbucks!
- The first flush toilet was invented!
- The first camera was invented — but it took 8 hours to take the picture!

